LOOKING BACKWARD

On September 7, 1939, Janus, keeper of the gates and god of beginnings and of endings, smiled benevolently as 317 students, the class of 1943, entered East Hartford high school for the first time.

We had been there only a few short weeks and were just beginning to feel like old timers when the death of Miss Kathleen Goodhue deeply grieved the entire school. Those of us who had known her felt the loss of a friend as well as a teacher.

The election of freshmen class officers and of Student Council representatives provided the first opportunity for members of our class to participate in student government. As soon as the results of the election were known, Jimmy Hale took over his duties as our class president.

Apparently the upperclassmen were determined to show the freshmen that we had a top-notch football team, for that year saw one of the most successful seasons that East Hartford high school has ever had. Our basketball team showed the same spirit, and we were victorious over most of our opponents.

In the early spring, time was drawing near for the biggest event of our freshman year, the Freshman Party. The various committees were chosen and were soon busy carrying out the plans for a successful evening. It was an informal affair at which everyone felt right at home and enjoyed the dancing, games and refreshments.

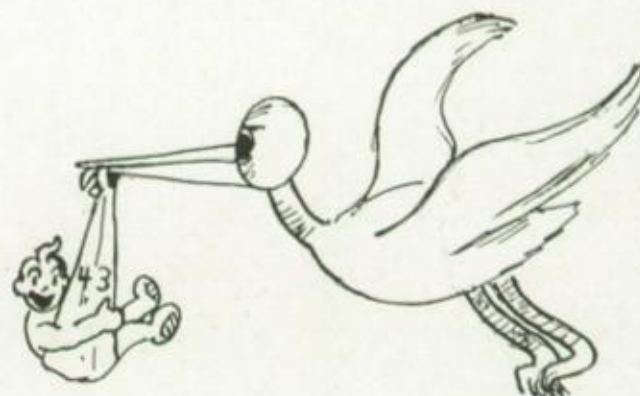

At the beginning of our sophomore year our long-awaited school band was organized by Mr. Parker Green. Many members of our class willingly gave their time to help make the band a worthwhile representative of our school.

In November plans for the annual bazaar began to take shape. As usual the country store was sponsored by the sophomores. John Caywood, our class president, supervised the general preparations. With the cooperation of teachers and students alike it was a definite success.

In May members of our own class were elected to offices of the Student Council with Ruthe Cunningham as girls' vice president, Pat Mallione as boys' vice president, and Jean Carroll as corresponding secretary.

On December 7, 1941, in our junior year, war came to our country. The following day at school the atmosphere was tense. Classes were stopped in order that we might hear President Roosevelt's speech and the ensuing declaration of war.

A few weeks later when Mr. Beadle, our French teacher, left to join the army, many of us who had felt that the war was being fought on another continent, began to realize that in a sense it was being fought right here at home. In cooperation with the local Civilian Defense Council plans were made for the evacuation of the students in case of a raid. Before long we were all familiar with procedure to follow during an air raid.

It was late February when the Junior Prom was held. We danced to the music of the Mayfair Club, and Charles Brewer, president of our class, led the grand march. The gym was decorated as a ship's deck. Because of the paper shortage caused by the war, bunting was used to cover the walls. Carrying out the nautical theme were life preservers and ships' pennants hung around the balcony. The names on the life preservers represented recent battles of the Pacific, such as S.S. Guam and S.S. Wake.

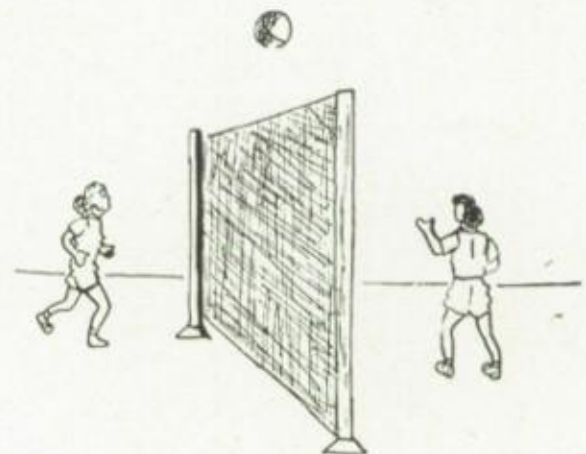

After 23 years of service as superintendent of schools in East Hartford, Mr. Barnes retired. His place was taken by Dr. John Fox, who in a short time became a good friend of all the students.

Under the leadership of Miss Eleanor Whitney plans were laid for a new event in our school year, Girls' Sport Night. Because of the epidemic of measles running through the school at that time, some of the girls were absent. Nevertheless there was keen competition between the Blue and Green teams. The basketball game, volley ball, dancing, and rhythm drill showed what the girls were accomplishing in their physical education program. At the close of the evening a plaque was presented to the victorious Green team by Dr. Fox.

When the annual State Choral Festival was held in April, our glee clubs were hosts to many other choral groups. As usual the East Hartford high school glee clubs received a very high rating under the able leadership of Miss Doris Rayner.

Later in the month we were again reminded of the proximity of the war when our principal, Major Roy Haggard, left for the army. At a farewell assembly, the student body presented him with a radio and wished him the best of luck.

Then we began our last year in East Hartford high school. Instead of a year devoted entirely to fun and frolic, we intended to mix a little of the fun with plenty of hard work. Our nation was at war. This war was going to bring about a change in our school life and in the life of the post-war world.

At our first assembly we were introduced to our new principal, Mr. Hillis Idleman. He took an immediate interest in all our activities and throughout the year was our understanding friend.

A few weeks later at the request of the government, East Hartford high school joined with the other high schools of the country in carrying out the Victory Corps program.

First aid courses were substituted for our regular gym classes. Fellow students were treating one another for imaginary cases of drowning and bleeding. We went around the halls muttering to ourselves, "Out goes the bad air, in comes the good."

We participated in a ten-week Civilian Defense course. By means of this course the students of East Hartford high school became better prepared to fight the enemy in case of actual bombing.

Then something new was added to our English classes. We began to learn the Morse code. Students of the class who were trained in the art of sending gave us our daily lessons. Soon the old walls were listening to di di di dah, di di di dah.

In order that the girls and boys might be better prepared for the war, new courses in navigation, aeronautics, and radio were started. Many of us took advantage of the opportunity offered by these courses, for we began to realize we all would have a definite part to play in this war. This specialized training would, no doubt, help us a great deal in our future work.

On October 3 East Hartford high school played an important part in the Victory Day parade. Most of the organizations of the school were represented, because we students were working not only for a day of victory but for a world of everlasting peace.

The Student Council played an important part in our victory program as sponsor of the scrap drive. Scrap was desperately needed for the defense of our country, so the whole high school worked together and contributed 9 tons of scrap metal. Jimmy Hale, as president of the council, helped carry on the example of fine work set by his predecessors.

October 23 saw the gym gaily dressed in its hallowe'en costume. Cornstalks were in every corner. Jack-o-lanterns grinned at us from each nook and crevice. The smell of sweet apple cider was in the air. Yes, sir, the seniors were holding their annual barn dance. Everyone had a rousing good time, and over one hundred dollars was raised to help finance the senior class.

Many were the nights that the god of beginnings and of endings looked in 102 and saw Miss Holmes and the Janus Board working on his namesake. Up in room 204 our president, Art Mulligan, and the executive board were working hard with Miss McClellan to organize the affairs of the senior class.

The Senior Dance, with the boys in their tuxes and the girls in their soft, colorful gowns, marked the last social gathering of our class.

When as freshmen we first entered East Hartford high school, we had all the appearances of just an average class. The coming of war, however, proved differently. Every single one of us took hold and did everything possible to help in the war effort—buying war bonds and stamps, serving as air raid wardens and plane spotters, and rolling bandages for the Red Cross in our spare time.

We are confident that as we walked out of the doors after graduation into a hard and realistic world, Janus smiled proudly, for he knew that we would be able to overcome any obstacles that might arise before us in the future.

Under-

Bewildered and inwardly excited, the Class of 1944 hesitantly entered the portals of East Hartford high school on September 3, 1940. "Take the elevator" and "dumb frosh" were the time-worn phrases that reached our ears. Homeroom numbers, period bells, changing classes, upstairs and downstairs, lockers, new subjects, and teachers—all threw our minds into confusion.

Not until we had elected our own class officers did we feel we were really a part of the school. Claire Green was our first president; Alma Lang, vice president; Shirley Bidwell, secretary; and Howard Barnes, treasurer. To most of us the Freshman Party and the annual bazaar were perhaps the outstanding social events of the year.

September 1941—we were now sophomores, wise fools, and did we feel superior! Kenny Pinney was elected class president;

Jackie Cooper, vice president; Mary Longo, secretary; and Alphonse Atspins, treasurer.

November was historical—the month of our first semi-formal, the Sophomore Hop. The school bazaar, a little later, found us "on the alert". As is the custom of the sophomores, we conducted the Country Store in a most creditable manner.

December 7, 1941—attack of Pearl Harbor! As a result air raid drills were introduced into school, and we all became war-minded. We sophomores fell into line, determined to take our place in the war effort.

September 1942—227 juniors were ready to claim their rank as upper classmen. Class voting resulted in the election of Billy Hickey, president; Betty Heffron, vice president; Terry Endrelunas, secretary; and Jimmy Sullivan, treasurer.

JUNIOR CLASS

How proud we were later in the year to have members on the football and basketball teams! We helped beat Hartford High in both games!

More and more we felt the influence of war. First Aid, Civilian Defense, Home Nursing, Nutrition, and Commando courses for both boys and girls played an important part in our school lives.

January 1943—gas rationing, no pleasure driving, no automobiles for our Junior Prom. What did we care? We were grown up and glad to do our part in this all-out war.

SOPHOMORE

About midday September 3, 1941, a large group of chattering individuals assembled in front of East Hartford high school. After entering the building we filed into the auditorium and excitedly sat down. On the platform sat two rows of slightly formidable but reassuring faculty members. We were rather hazy about the regulations, but after encouraging talks we felt less confused.

With our schedules in hand we attempted to find our way around the building. Soon, however, we adjusted ourselves to the school's routine.

Then came the time for us to organize. Jack Wardwell was elected president; Betty Hart, vice president; Marian Goddard, secretary; and Robert Fulcher, treasurer.

The main social event of the year was our Freshman Party. Our class advisers, Miss May Regan and Miss Doris Gower, the freshman class teachers, and our president, Jack Wardwell, acted as host and hostesses.

Some of the other activities that we shall long remember were the bazaar and the As I Like It Hallowe'en party. On the whole we had an eventful and thoroughly enjoyable year.

Sophomores at least! It didn't take us long to get back into the swing of things. There was a little difficulty in getting our schedules settled because of the new and varied war courses.

The results of the class election were Mildred Wilkas, president; Jack Wardwell, vice president; Betty Hart, secretary; and Louis Dube, treasurer.

Before the first quarter of our sophomore year had ended, the school sponsored a scrap drive. The sophomores, aroused by the keen competition between the four classes, collected bed posts, tea kettles, boilers, grates, flatirons, saucepans, and many other pieces of scrap to make the pile grow larger.

The decorations at the Hop were sparkling silver music notes on light blue bunting. Music was furnished by the Victory Serenaders.

Shortly after the dance the school began the Junior Red Cross drive. We cooperated with this drive wholeheartedly and also bought Defense Stamps from members of the salesmanship class. By participating in all that we could, we, the sophomores, felt that we were doing our share in the war effort.

FRESHMAN

On September 9, 1942, an excited and somewhat bewildered group of rather small boys and girls began what was to be their first day in high school. And what a day for us it was! It was a day of new teachers, lockers, clubs, rooms and, of course, the usual ribbing which goes along with being freshmen. The upperclassmen took great delight in making fun of us when we walked into the wrong room. We were often told to take the elevator. However, we somehow managed to get used to our new surroundings, and we became as much at home in the school as any upperclassman.

Freshman

Our class advisers were Miss Doris Gower and Miss Catherine Larrabee. We elected as our officers to work with them Shirley Davis, president; Kendel Baglin, vice president; Barbara Galinat, secretary; and David Brewer, treasurer.

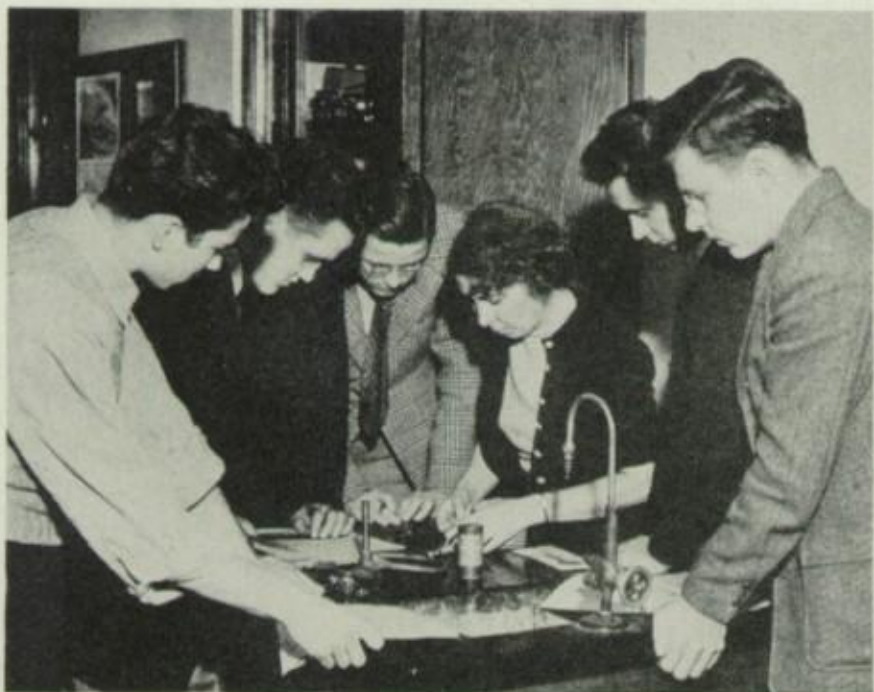

The long-awaited Freshman Party finally arrived, and we certainly were lucky as we had our party at night—a privilege not enjoyed by the two classes before us. There was dancing to the music of the popular Victory Serenaders; and for those who did not care to dance, there were games which everyone likes to play.

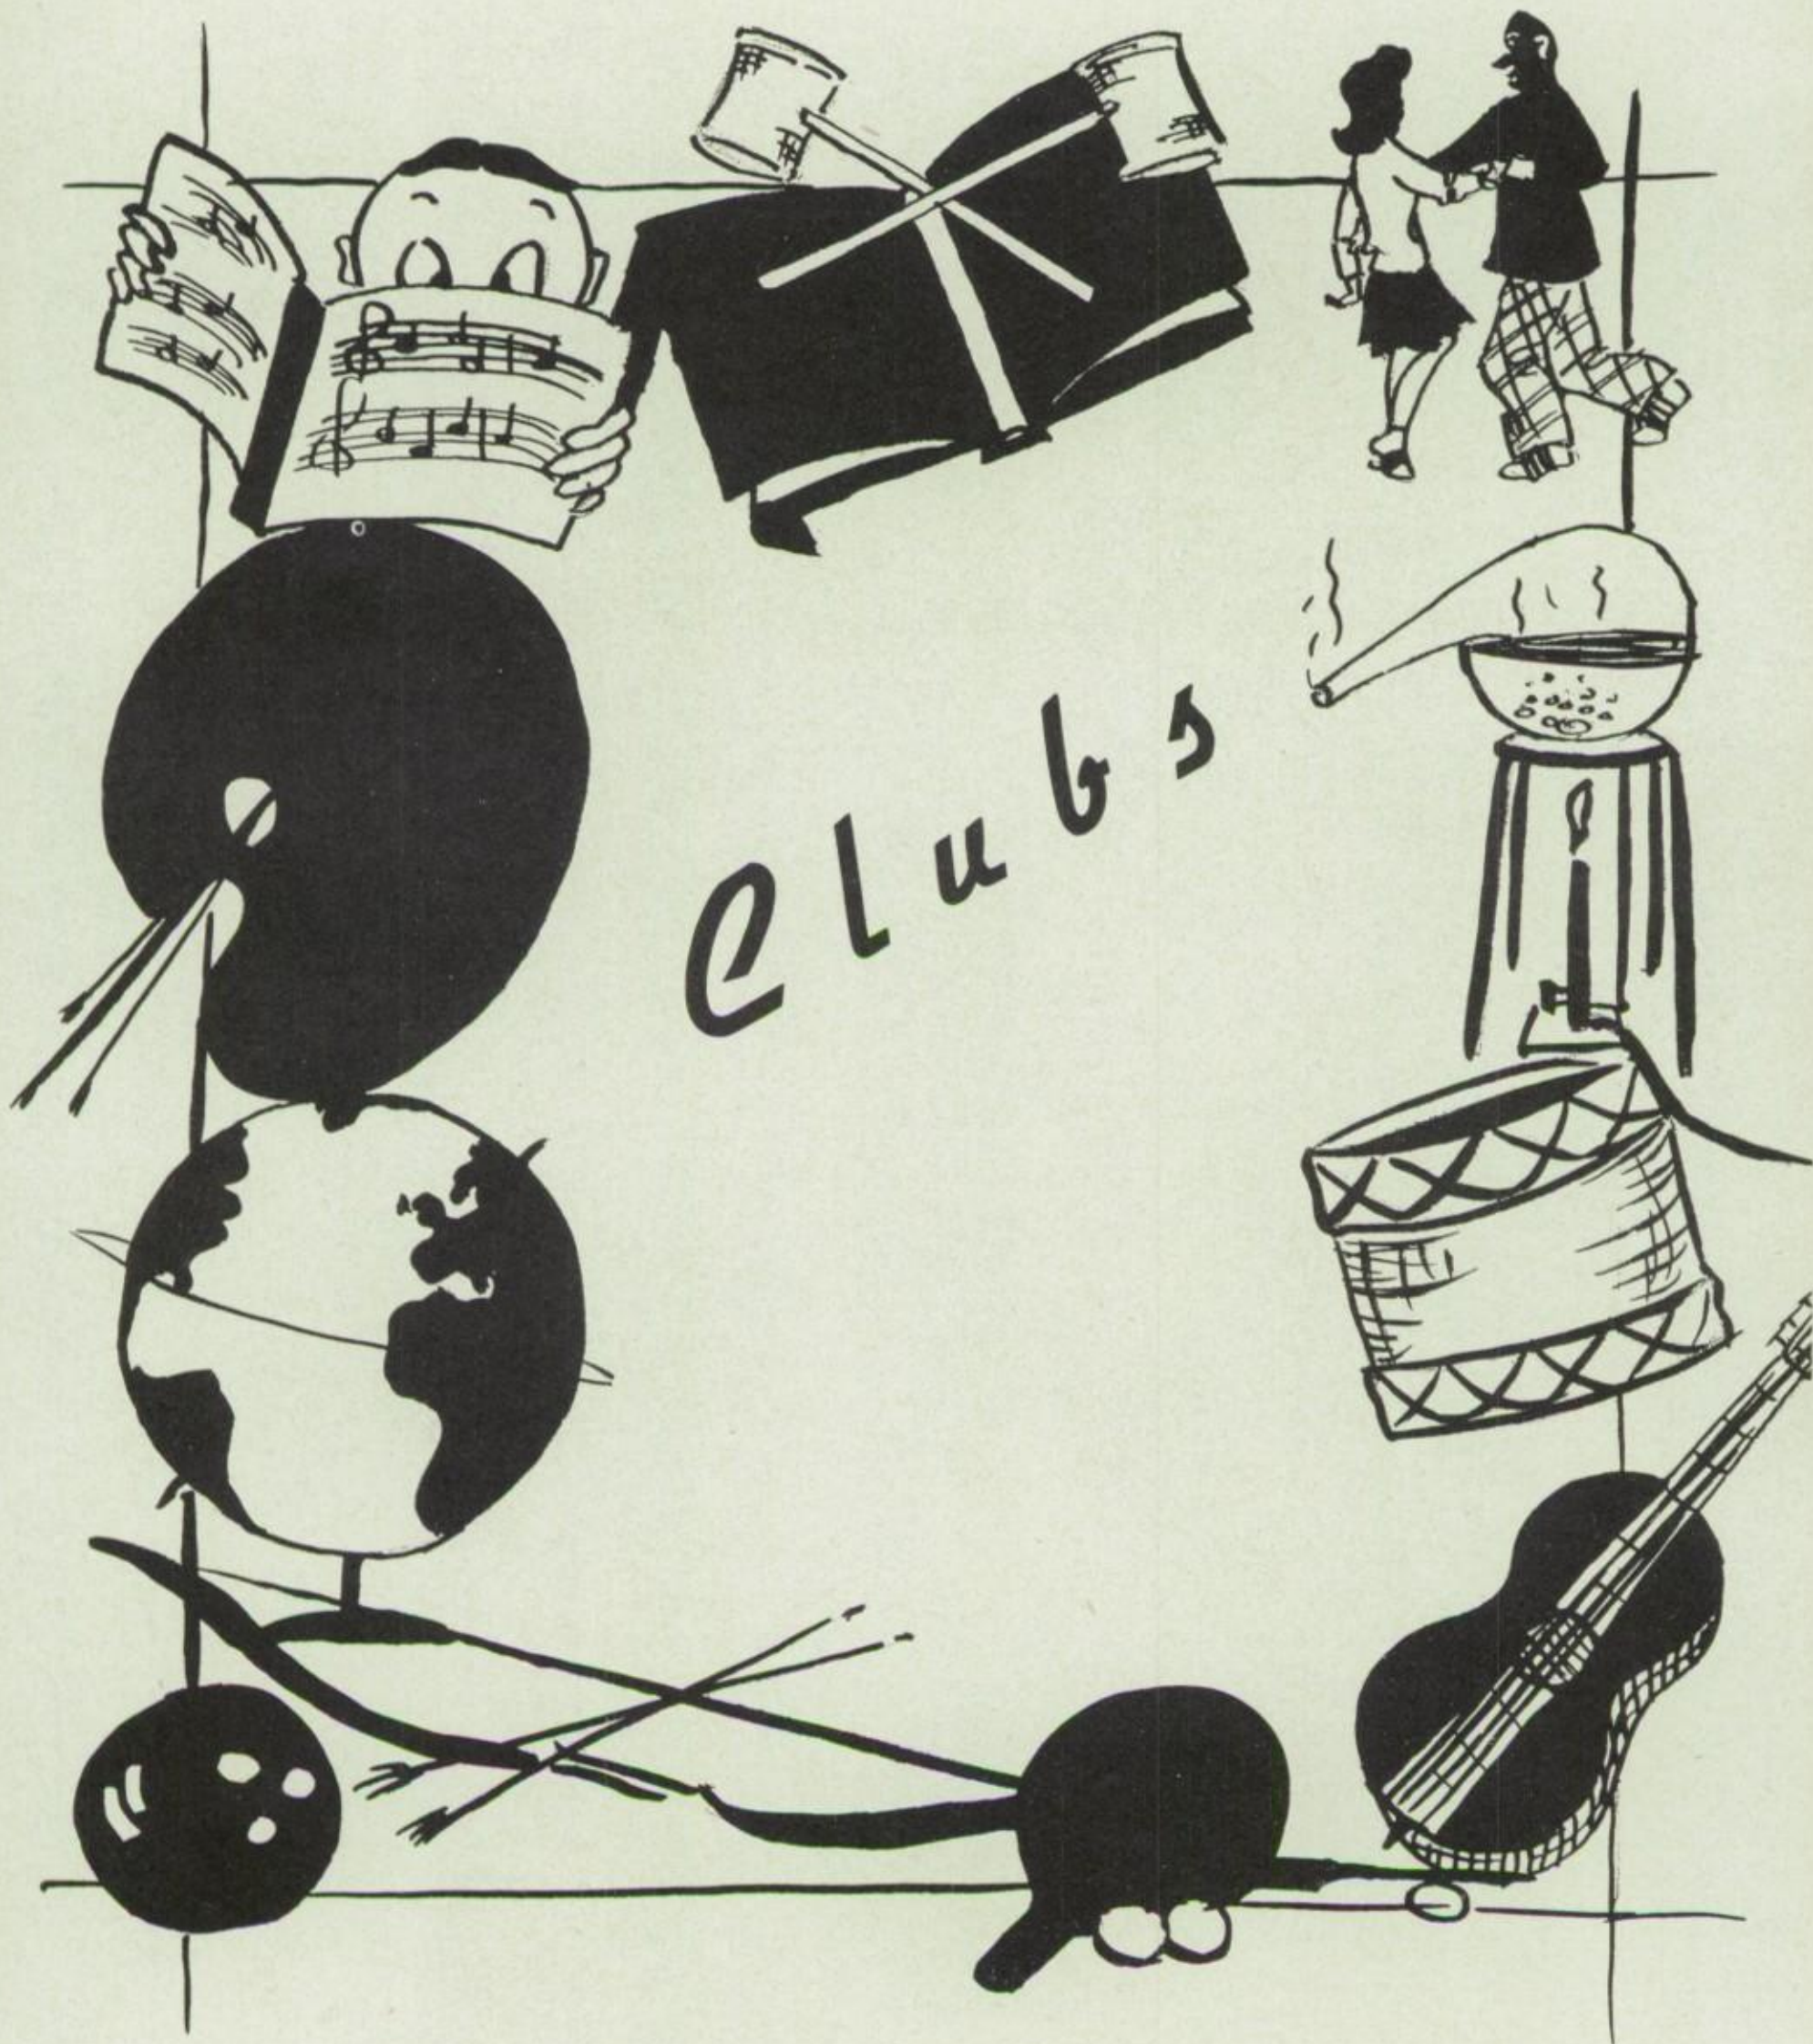

Our first year passed quickly, but as freshmen we made our mark at East Hartford high school. We conscientiously paid our S.A.A. dues; we joined the many clubs open to us; we sang in the Freshman Chorus; we took part in the sports open to both boys and girls; and we went to the games and dances. All in all we did everything in our power to make East Hartford high school proud of the Class of '46.

Contributing their share of entertainment so necessary for morale, the Masquers gave their annual play in the early spring. Those who took part learned not only to act but also to direct and to apply make-up.

Alpha Gamma Epsilon

The purpose of the Alpha Gamma Epsilon, an important social club open to junior and senior girls, was to develop leadership and social graces, and to discover hidden talents.

The A.G.E., in keeping with the other clubs of the school, made special efforts to take an active part in the war effort. The members of the club made surgical dressings for the Red Cross, a small but important task for the cause which is so important to us all.

As I Like It

The As I Like It Club, which consists of freshmen and sophomore girls, has always been considered the little sister to the Alpha Gamma. The main objectives of the two clubs were similar, but the As I Like It differed in its activities directed to the war effort.

American soldiers, in the United States and on far-flung battlefields, realized these girls were taking an active part in the home front when they received books and magazines from them. They also aided the Red Cross by delivering sweaters from all parts of the town to its headquarters.

The football team of 1942 enjoyed a most successful season. Starting out slowly, the team soon progressed and grew stronger as the year went by. Among its victories was included one over Hartford High, an enemy of long standing. By a score of 7-6 our boys broke the jinx for the first time in history.

The team had a very strong line and a fast backfield. The line was composed of Henry Boucher, Jake Fahey, John Patrick, Leo Beaulieu, Tooty Leone, Dick Landers, and Floyd Huntington. Those comprising the backfield were Captain Ed Frankovitch, Billy Foran, John Dulka, and Red Welch.

Full of life and spirit East Hartford's basketball team finished the most successful season of the school's history.

At the start of the season things looked bad, for East Hartford dropped the first game to a strong Manchester five. Bounding back into the winning column was not too tough for a fighting East Hartford team.

Coach George Magrath was proud of such players as Captain Bill Manning, a really great center, who led his team to many of its victories. There were four forwards who could have started any of the games and given a good account of themselves. They were Bill Foran, Bill Hickey, Ken Pinney, and lanky Billy Wade.

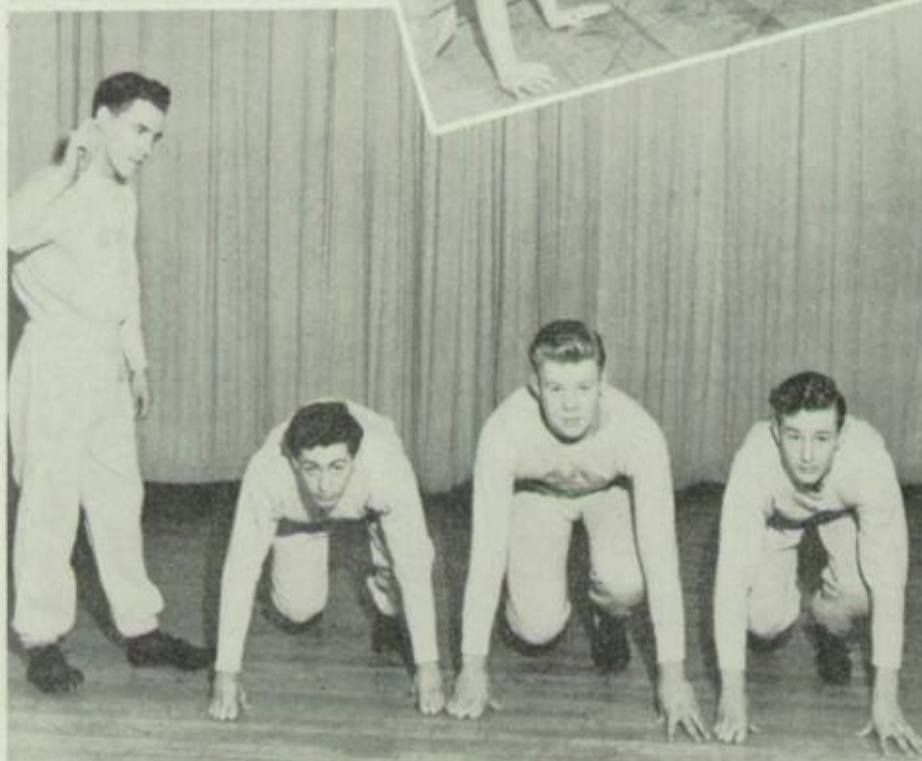

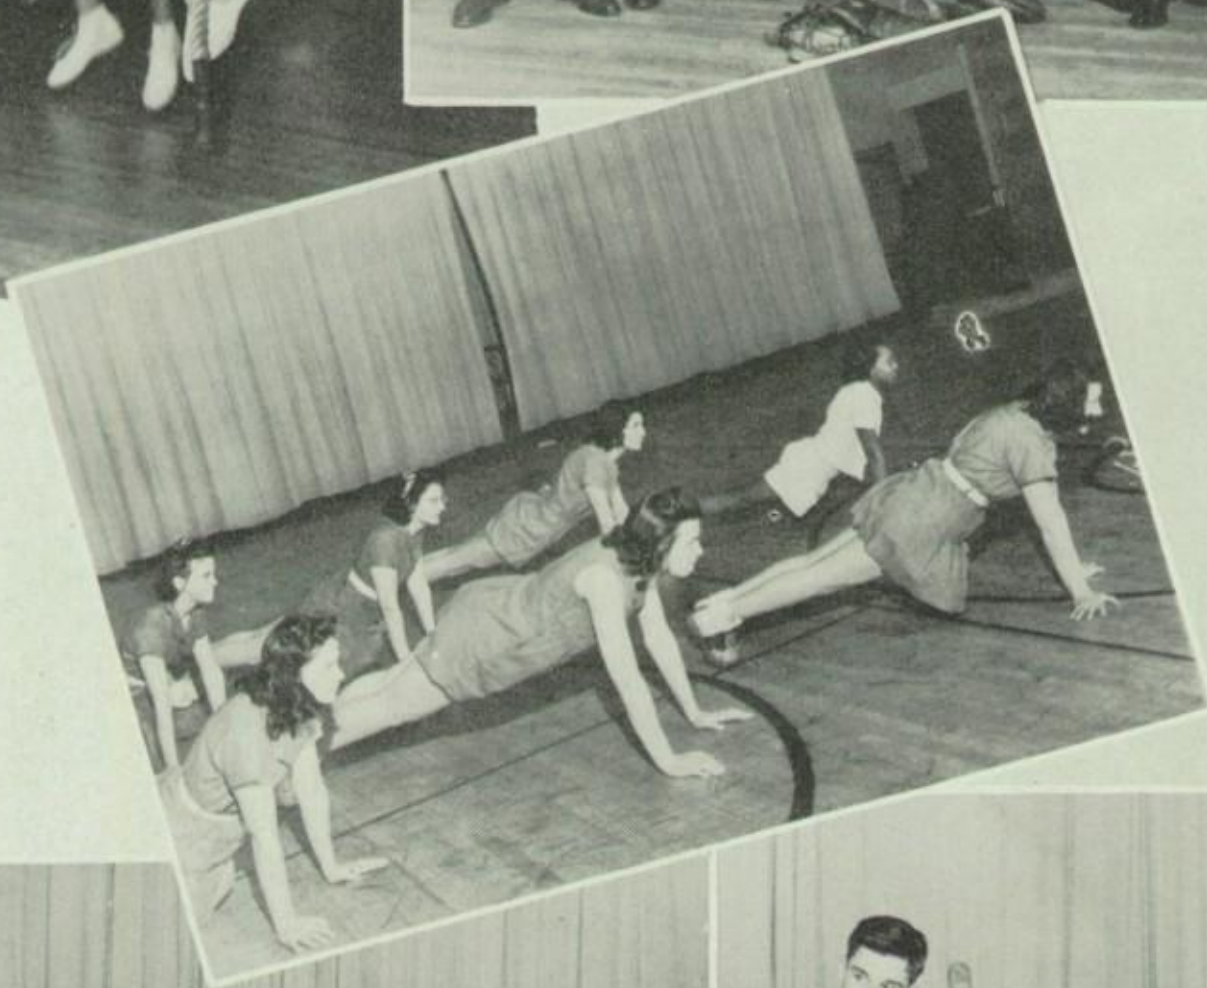

The two guards, Bob Ermisch and John Caywood, were always ready to help out the three other fellows with fast, accurate passes which usually led to an East Hartford victory.

New Bulletin Board Erected

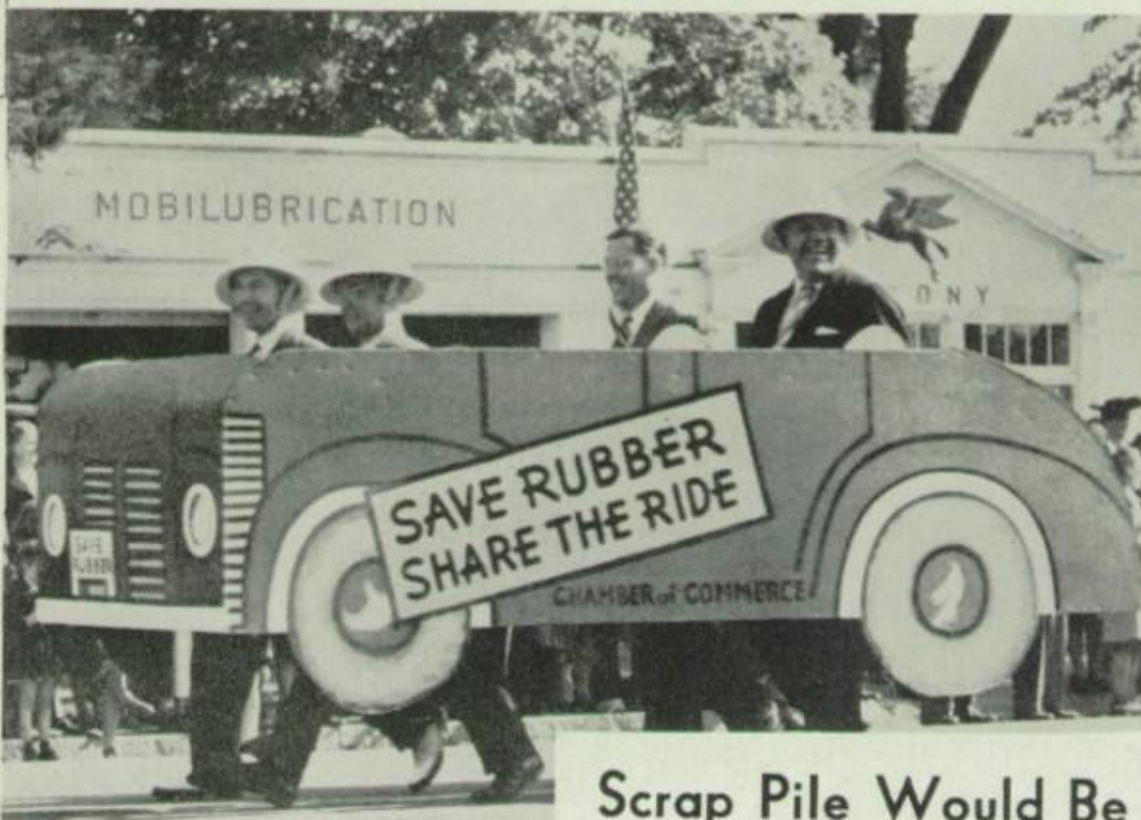

Probably many of you have noticed the new bulletin board in the cafeteria but have not known just why it is there. Its purpose is to bring you the latest news of the home front, the school front and the war front. In this way students will be able to get a good picture of the latest happenings on the three fronts. You will see what you, as high school pupils, can do to help the war effort. The work is done by the students of the social studies department.

Every effort will be made to present the latest news items which are of interest to all.

So far up-to-date news watch the board daily. Since this was written, the bulletin board has been moved and will be hung in the first floor corridor.

New War Courses

Normal school activities have been disrupted here at East Hartford High, these past few weeks. Many students have signed up for and have already started training in newly formed courses in Radio, Navigation, Aeronautics, Photography, Morse Code, and Touch Typing, the latter especially for boys not in the commercial course.

Saturday courses at Manchester Trade School have started, namely: Machine Shop, Electricity, and Carpentry. These will be offered from 8-12 or 1-5 or all eight hours, every Saturday.

These courses present wonderful opportunities for the younger boys here in school, age 15-16-17. Boys interested are requested to see the principal immediately.

Yes, You Too, Can Help!

Are They Emancipated

First Aid classes instead of gym? Sa—well: That'll be a snap! No more falling into gym suits that never did fit us anyway. Boys and girls combined—Woo—Woo! Now we'll have a chance to hold hands with the boys and see how fast their heart beats, if at all. If the pulse is above 72, you have a chance; if it's below 60, he's as good as dead.

The day came for us to start our classes. Oh! happy day. We all went prancing into the audit., grinning from ear to ear; loaded

"Your assignn week will be the the First Aid Tolerance—"Next, the handling of leg and arm. By the time we finished the leg and arm almost ready to had to memorize was—simple—"First immediate treatment uh—a—a" (per huh?)

Next, see if the patient is rushed. If so—give him a stimulant of ice water. If the patient is suffering from unconsciousness—the class passes out.

JEEP CORPS PURCHASE

Where is all the money that's jingle jangle jingling in some students hands coming from? Yes, it's returns from United States War Bond and Stamp sale. The fourth period Senior Sales Class is doing its part in National Defense. Some day soon students will be seeing a poster in the front corridor adorned with jeeps. A Willys "Jeep" costs $900. With each $900 the class receives, the school will have bought one "Jeep." At each $900 mark on the poster will be placed a miniature "Jeep." Come on Students! We need your wholehearted cooperation to make our school enrolled 100% in Bond and Stamp Sales and have our poster literally cluttered with "Jeeps."

Commando Training Gets Underway

In co-operation with the Army plans a commando training program has been introduced into the high school with Mr. Cushing in charge. The senior boys and all others sixteen or over are required to take this training one period a day.

Also the shop under Mr. Hansen's supervision made and erected an obstacle course on the athletic field.

An Open Letter - - -

Dear Samuel Morse—how I love him? He certainly didn't know what he was letting me in for when he invented his (blank) dit-dah code.

I was delighted at the thought of escaping for ten minutes from English, Oh joy ! . Much to my astonishment there was work to be done in those ten minutes, and I do mean work.

A new alphabet to be learned, oral recitation and writing on the board, that extremely unpleasant task.

One must certainly have good clean ears to hear what Samuel Morse is relating to us from his resting place in the grave yard.

Plane Spotters

The Defense setup in East Hartford, needs more airplane spotters. Spotters are very important, for if they were not on the job, or if there were not any at all, and planes came over an important defense city like East Hartford without being reported, loads of damage could be done.

Spotting is a good sport for the students that like to stand and stare at airplanes. There is nothing hard about this job. A few hours a day a couple days a week reporting planes that come over near the post is all that is
